

HIGHER TAXES = LOWER ELECTRICITY BILLS ?

The real head-scratcher is why anyone would want to increase taxes when we already pay 20% more for electricity than neighboring states.

As a Connecticut resident, you already know that our taxes and energy costs are consistently higher than those in surrounding states. And if SB 1176—which proposes a huge, new tax on in-state energy companies—is passed by the state legislature, the cost of electricity will get even more expensive.

In Connecticut we pay 20% more for electricity than our neighboring New England states. And this new tax will result in even higher energy costs. It will mean not just increased monthly electric bills for residents and businesses. It will also cost us jobs and hurt our economy.

So please join the 74% of Connecticut residents who believe this is a bad idea. Visit dom.com/millstone to learn how to contact your legislators and tell them to vote against Senate Bill 1176—all it will do is cost Connecticut hard-earned money and important jobs.
